Miguel Tabuena (Phi) – Final day 68 (-3), Total 281 (-13)

What is your verdict?

I can't complain with the way I played. Not being 100%, no complaints at all. It kind of helped that I wasn't in the final group, it took some pressure off. Unfortunately, I bogeyed 17 but came back to birdie 18.

Birdie on 18 must have been special?

I was told it almost went in for an eagle. I won't say this is my biggest achievement but this is certainly my biggest pay cheque so far. I'm really happy with the way I played and I can't wait for next week.

To do it on this stage is important?

It's all about coming through in big tournaments like this. It's all about experience like this and I'm knocking on the door again. Hopefully I'll get another win soon.

It adds to the experience?

I guess it helps I'm been on tour for five years now although I'm 21. Being young, it gives me the aggression as I have five years on tour. I'm more mature now and I can't wait for the rest of the year. It will certainly help my world ranking points. The big goal is to get into the Olympics and I think this will help.

How are you place for Rio?

As of now, I'm in. If I can keep my momentum, I should do it.

What do you think you must do to keep at this level?

There are so many things. For example, making clutch decisions or being over confident and knowing when to be aggressive and making the right decisions at the crucial points.
